Estill barn and home severely damaged in fires

By WHITNEY LEGGETT

CV&T News Editor

Local fire crews worked to extinguish two fires that occurred in Estill County earlier this week.

Estill County Fire Department Chief Derrick Muncie reported his department worked a house fire on Barnes Mountain on Monday morning and assisted the Hargett Fire Department with a barn fire later that evening.

Muncie said the department got the call in reference to the house fire at approximately 2:45 on Monday morning. “When we arrived the roof was already burned off,” he said. “And the house was pretty involved.”

He said the home was vacant as of last month and all of the furnishings had been removed.

A five-foot by 10-foot outbuilding on the property was also destroyed in the fire.

The case has been turned over to a Kentucky State Police fire investigator. Muncie said the cause of the fire is undetermined.

Board of Education answers parents’ concerns over bed bugs at school

By WHITNEY LEGGETT

The Estill County Board of Education answered questions from concerned parents at its most recent meeting.

Several parents were present at West Irvine Elementary school for the meeting to ask the board about an outbreak of bed bugs at Estill Springs Elementary that had been confirmed earlier this month.

The parents asked for information about the procedures being taken at the school and also expressed concerns over the lack of communication on the part of the school and adminis-

Christopher reassured the parents the necessary precautions are being taken to combat the problem.

Hensley said he is still working closely with Environmentalist Kenny Cole with the Estill County Health Department. He said he is taking his advice and following his recommendations as closely as possible.

Cole, who has been closely monitoring the problem for several weeks, suggested spraying the entire school over the weekend.

“Although the bugs haven’t been found in all parts of the school, Kenny recommended this as a precautionary measure,” Hensley said.

Christopher told the parents this is the first time he

Hargett man convicted of murder has case overturned

KENTUCKY COURT OF APPEALS UPHOLDS CLAIM OF INEFFECTIVE COUNSEL

By JAMES COOK

Special to CV&T

A Hargett man convicted in a 2005 Powell County murder has had his case reversed.

Now the victim’s and the man’s families will see if an evidentiary hearing will have a bearing on a possible new trial or just sentencing options.

Stewart Johnson was convicted in July 2007 of the murder of Jerry Wayne Dotson.

The two men had allegedly had an argument when Johnson shot Dotson several times in Dotson’s outbuilding at his home on Snow Creek Road. That happened on May 12, 2005.

Johnson claimed it was self defense, but a Powell County jury disagreed.

Now the Kentucky Court of Appeals has ruled that Johnson’s claim of ineffective counsel would be upheld.

The court ruled that since Johnson’s defense attorney, John Cornett, did not object to or try to submit lesser included offenses instructions to the jury during the trial, that it was possible that the representation was indeed ineffective.

The court ruled there should be a hearing to determine if “the instructions were declined as part of a reasonable trial strategy.”

The court also ruled that the “failure to obtain lesser-included instructions to which a defendant was entitled in the absence of trial strategy could constitute ineffective counsel.”

The court stated in their ruling last week that if the

and the rest of administration have had to deal with such an issue.

“Bed bugs are a new thing for everyone to deal with,” he said. “I don’t know as much as I need to in order to help combat this problem.”

He said the first step for parents, teachers and administration needs to be educating themselves on the issue.

“I have to educate myself about this issue,” he said. “We all do.”

Most parents present expressed discontent with the way the problem was released to the public and the lack of communication concerning the issue.

Christopher admitted the administrators could have communicated the problem more effectively and asked the parents to trust that the problem is not being overlooked.

The school was sprayed by a professional pest control company over the weekend and parents were assured the school would be safe for students to return this week.

Information about bed bugs and how to prevent or treat the problem can be accessed from the Environmental Protection Agency at www.epa.gov/bedbugs. There are also fact sheets available at the Estill County Health Department.

In other business, the school board heard a presentation from West Irvine Principal BJ Martin.

Martin discussed with the board members and guests present the goals and recent successes of the school.

She also provided a tour of the new facility which is expected to be completed after the Christmas holiday.

A group of fifth grade students were asked to share ideas they brainstormed about how to improve the learning experience at the school. Some of the ideas they suggested included more technology integration, more lessons on computer skills and online skills, increased focus on student leadership, career preparedness, high attendance and even detention.

Martin said these suggestions all related to the school’s goal of creating a 21st century learning environment.

Hensley also shared the third month of school attendance rates for the district.

In October attendance percentages at the schools in the district were as follows:

- Estill County High School: 93.66 percent
- Estill County Middle School: 94.5 percent
- Estill Springs Elementary School: 94.61 percent
- South Irvine Elementary School: 93.59 percent
- West Irvine Elementary School: 95.5 percent
- District: 94 percent.

For the school year, each school in the district has more than 94 percent average attendance.

Christopher told the board the construction project at West Irvine had passed all of the more than 275 inspections done at the project site between October 2010 and June 2012.

Christopher said the inspections must be done by law. According to the project summary provided by the company, S&ME, the inspections were done on soil bearing foundations, concrete, load bearing masonry and structural steel construction.

There were no injuries.

The department was called by the Hargett Fire Department for assistance with a barn fire just off KY 89 on Harris Ferry Road.

Hargett Fire Department Chief Rob Forehand said they got the call at around 12:30 p.m. Monday.

He said smoke from the barn was visible as they approached from KY 89.

“We called for mutual aid at this point,” he said.

Clay City Fire Department and the Stanton Fire Department also responded.

The barn was fully involved when crews arrived but they were able to spare another barn near by.

There were no animals in the barn at the time of the fire but the owner estimated around $100,000 of equipment was destroyed.

Forehand said a tractor, a trailer, a hay bailer and several small tools were in the building.

“It was a total loss,” he said.

He said the owner of the property, Ernest Woosley, had insurance. The insurance company will make the final decision about whether to seek an investigation into the cause.

“There was nothing to make us think this fire was suspicious,” he said. “We would deem [the cause] undetermined.”

MURDER

counsel was indeed inadequate then Johnson could prove his allegation that the case was “prejudiced because the jury could have had reasonable doubt as to the degree of wantonness required to convict for wanton murder.” The court also ruled that the jury could have “believed beyond reasonable doubt that Johnson had the state of mind to constitute guilt for a lesser-included offense.”

During the trial in 2007 Commonwealth Attorney Darrell Herald presented the events of that night by several witnesses. Although divorced from Dotson six years earlier, Kristy Dotson resided at the residence along with Dotson and their three daughters. Kristy testified that Jerry had gone to the outbuilding on the premises around dark that evening and had returned to the house at approximately 9 p.m. to get his .357-magnum revolver. She also said that she and the girls had gone to bed around 10 p.m. that evening.

Kristy continued her version of the event, “I heard a loud noise early in the morning, and I went to see what had happened.”

She found Jerry lying wounded in the outbuilding. She said someone standing near a pickup truck yelled at her saying, “Get the f_____ out of here!”

Upon returning to the house, a call was placed to her father-in-law, Verlin Dotson, who lived a short distance away. Verlin testified that when he arrived, he found his son dead. He told Kristy to call 911 and she replied, “I already have.”

According to Kentucky State Police (KSP) and local law officers, they were called to the home of Dotson on Jones Road, just off Snow Creek Road, at approximately 2:30 a.m. Upon arrival, they found Dotson lying in an outbuilding with several wounds to his body.

Former Powell County Coroner Carl Wells Sr. testified that he pronounced Dotson dead upon his arrival at the scene. Wells said Dotson was shot five times in the chest.

KSP Detective Joe Veeneman testified that he arrived on the scene at approximately 5:05 that morning.

He said, “Dotson was on his stomach on the floor of the out building when I arrived. We rolled him on to his back and found a .357-magnum revolver under the body.”

According to Veeneman, KSP Officers went to the home of Johnson in Estill County to talk to him later that morning. He testified that Johnson told KSP, “I was there, and I did it.” Johnson also told officers that he fired “10 plus one shots” from his .40-caliber handgun. That usually means that he had a 10 round clip and one shell in the chamber. Johnson also claimed that Dotson had attacked him and that he shot in self defense.

According to court records and testimony, police found a .22-caliber near Dotson's body and a .357-magnum under Dotson's body. Both of the guns allegedly belonged to Dotson.

An autopsy revealed five gunshot wounds and a .22-caliber bullet still inside Dotson's body. Police said at the time that testing showed that the .22-caliber bullet could not have come from the .22-caliber gun found near the body. Johnson reportedly admitted to owning a .22-caliber semi-automatic weapon. However, the weapon was never tested.

Police testimony indicated that they found used .22-caliber shells in Johnson's truck but no .22-caliber casings at the scene of the shooting. There were some .38-caliber bullets found in the area and allegedly could have come from a .357-magnum. However, they could not have come from Johnson's .40-caliber handgun according to expert testimony. Apparently no .40-caliber shells were found. Autopsy results showed that Dotson had a blood alcohol of .18 and had marijuana and cocaine in his system.

In his opening remarks, defense attorney John Cornett told the jury that both individuals had been drinking and that Dotson had evidence of cocaine in his blood. He explained Johnson's claim that during the night Dotson attacked Johnson, and that he pulled his pistol then he fired several shots into the Dotson's body. After the shooting, Johnson left the scene and returned to his residence in Estill County.

Court records indicate that Cornett did not object to the jury instructions and he did not request for any instructions for lesser included charges to be given as well. The judge in the case, Hon. Frank Fletcher, even asked if there were any objections and Cornett said no.

The jury convicted Johnson and asked for a 25 year sentence.

Johnson in the past has filed appeals stating that that his counsel had made specific errors and that the court would not allow statements from police and the victim's family about Dotson's behavior when he was intoxicated to be used that were contradicting statements used at the trial. All those appeals were denied

A hearing has been scheduled for Dec. 19 in Powell Circuit Court. Johnson is currently in the Kentucky State Reformatory in LaGrange.

There are things to be thankful for in Estill County

It's finally here. "It" being Thanksgiving. Like I've said a million times before, Thanksgiving is my favorite holiday. I enjoy it so much because it's all about spending time with the people who mean the most to us. Now, Christmas is about this too. But, I believe society has warped the idea and meaning of that holiday so much that it's not that fun anymore. Thanksgiving, though, is so much about really making people reflect on the year that has just passed, how much things have changed and everything they have to be thankful for. This year I have so much more to be thankful for than I can ever remember. This is due in part to being in my own home in a new community in my dream job. I am thankful that I graduated college this year, built a strong relationship with my significant other and grew closer to my parents. I'd like to use my column this week to tell my readers all about the things in Estill County that I'm thankful for. I am blessed to have a job that requires me to participate in events and meetings in the community that many others do not. This exposes me to some of the best, brightest and most involved citizens in our community. It also allows me to bear witness to things that make this community special. This Thanksgiving I have plenty of things to be thankful for about my new home.

WHITNEY LEGGETT
CV&T News Editor

A praying people
The thing I thing that stands out to me most about Estill County is that I live in a praying community. Never in my life have I lived somewhere or attended so many events where the people continually pray. I am thankful that I am surrounded by praying people because it makes me feel more comfortable and at more peace with my surroundings. I feel safe in this community and I appreciate that Estill County citizens have such a close relationship with God. I am thankful that our elected officials choose to pray at meetings and forums. Not very many people get the comfort of knowing their community is being led by people who are relying on God for guidance. I am happy to see our city council members and fiscal court magistrates praying that God's will be done in the decisions made in our community.

"Mom-n-Pop" stores
I can honestly say there have been plenty of times I've complained about the fact there isn't a Wal-Mart or Kroger in Estill County. Coming from a girl raised in Winchester who's used to making trips to Lexington at the drop of a hat, I haven't always appreciated the fact that Irvine is relatively secluded. But, when I step back and think about it, I'm glad there are little towns like this that seem to really value small businesses. I'm glad to see the Chamber of Commerce and the Estill Development Alliance are intact and are able to offer support and resources for the owners of these "mom-n-pop" stores. I love the feel of downtown Irvine with the little storefronts and I'm especially thankful to see that some of the businesses have been around for decades. That the citizens in Estill County are willing to patronize and support their local business men and women really shows a sense of dedication and community. Everyone should feel good knowing they live in a place like that.

Burger boxes and buffets
I've spent a good three years of my life in and out of Estill County on a regular basis. I lived here briefly last year, I travelled back and forth the year before that and this summer I moved here permanently. One thing I've always remarked to others about Estill County is how good the food is here. I love all the family-operated and locally-owned restaurants. I love a burger box from the Wig-Wam and the midnight loggers box from Old Timers Restaurant. When Cedar Village was open, I suggested it to everyone who asked about somewhere to eat. And you can't find a better salad bar than the one at Michael's. I crave the barbecue chicken at Hong Kong's... OK, I'm starting to sound a little gluttonous here. But, I sure am thankful to live in a place where the people really know how to cook. It inspires me to try to cook better, too. Not to mention eating at all these local restaurants boosts our local economy.

"Where the Bluegrass kisses the mountains..."
I can't begin to count the number of times I've literally stopped what I was doing to just stare at the landscape of Estill County. My jaw drops at how beautiful this community is. I am obsessed with the mountains that surround us. I'm sure some of you have seen me take my camera away from whatever event I'm covering and spend a few minutes snapping pictures of the mountains and forests that I call home now. My first trip out around the Red Lick area left me a little breathless and every time I come back into town from Richmond I become distracted by the rolling hills and the pure beauty of the nature in Estill County. I thank God constantly for the "miles of mountains" that I get the honor of witnessing everyday. If I were thankful for nothing else about Estill County, I would be thankful for how much it has made me appreciate untouched and untainted nature.

Thanks be to you
Finally, on this Thanksgiving I am thankful to all of my readers for so many things. Thanks for welcoming me to Estill County with open arms, first and foremost. From the invites to church, the emails I got my first week at the paper and even the help everyone has offered me while I'm trying to navigate my way around the mountains, I have always felt welcomed here. I am also thankful to everyone who chooses to read my column each week. I know that what I write isn't always relevant to all my readers. But, I appreciate all of the people who have become interested in my thoughts, my lessons learned and my beliefs. It is so great to hear from people that read my column each week. I don't think you guys really understand how special that makes me feel. Lastly, thank you for letting me be the one to tell your stories. Thanks for inviting me to your events and into your homes to talk about things that are close to your heart. I appreciate all the cooperation and the work that you guys do to help me out. I feel blessed and honored to be the one to document the lives of Estill Countians in 2012 and hopefully for years to come.

'Lincoln' a powerful movie for our times

We don't often go to the movies or even watch a movie at home but I'm glad we took the time to go see "Lincoln" over the weekend. The timing couldn't be more relevant for such a movie as this, with people in all 50 states recently signing petitions to secede from the union. The film focuses on the last four months of Lincoln's life, mostly on his efforts to win the support of the House of the Representatives to pass the 13th amendment which would abolish slavery. The Senate had approved the amendment the previous year. With the Civil War raging on in its fourth bloody year, "peace talks" further complicate the issue of ending slavery. Daniel Day-Lewis is amazing in the role of President Lincoln. Not only does he look like him, but he perfects a high-pitched tone of voice and a stooped walk that were reportedly characteristic of Lincoln. He portrays a man with the weight of the world on his shoulders, yet a kind man, a man loved by the masses and apparently respected even by his enemies. The movie is quiet but riveting as it focuses on the conversations of the liberal Republicans who largely favor abolishing slavery and the

By LISA BICKNELL
CV&T Staff Writer

Democrats who mostly refuse to consider it. Yes, party labels have pretty much flip-flopped since those days. Sally Field impressively plays Lincoln's wife, a complicated woman who sometimes succumbs to periods of wild grief over the loss of their son Will. While the movie doesn't focus on the war, it does show enough war scenes to emphasize the weight of the burden carried by the President and others in high political office during that dark time. It is hard to imagine that blood once ran like rivers on American soil. This movie should serve as a reminder that we never want that to happen again. Other brilliant performances are given by Tommy Lee Jones as Thaddeus Stevens, a passionate abolitionist, and David Strathairn as Secretary of State William Seward. I found Seward's character especially compelling as one of Lincoln's closest political advisors. There were several humorous moments as Lincoln often launched into long rambling stories whenever he was asked a question. Apparently he used this tactic often to disarm his opponents. The conversations and arguments, the manipulation and finagling of the law in this political drama reveal the messy process by which our country is and always has been governed. Based on the book by Doris Kearns Goodwin, "Team of Rivals: The Political Genius of Lincoln," the screenplay was written by Tony Kushner, who, according to the LA Times, said that he wrote "Lincoln" because: "upset at today's endemic lack of faith in governance," he wanted to tell a story that "shows that you can achieve miraculous, beautiful things through the democratic system." In my opinion, the movie effectively does that. For sure, one can better sympathize with any president for the monumental task they have in bringing people with opposing views together. Being president must be a terribly lonely job. I found it interesting to note the absence of technology as a means of communication. The President hand-wrote letters to be hand-carried to those he wanted to receive messages. Telegraphs were the fastest way of communicating long distance. The staging of the movie was excellent too, as the décor of the White House was recreated carefully for that period. The lighting, the music and the costuming all transport viewers to another time. Although the movie has received much praise, there are some who are critical of the way black women are portrayed in the movie. Others say Lincoln didn't really care about blacks but about getting states back into the union. I wonder how Lincoln's presidency would have looked had there been a "spin room," but it's easy enough to get an idea if you look up a few movie reviews. It's often been said that those who don't learn from history are doomed to repeat it. "Lincoln" serves as a timely reminder of the consequences of decisions made in anger. It also reminds us that favorable results can eventually come from the ugliest differences of opinion.

A man named Bill (last name not given), is often seen walking around town with a large wooden cross on his shoulders. The cross that he bears may be similar to the one that Christ carried to his crucifixion, but is used for a different purpose.

Bill, who would rather be known as "a voice of one who cried out in the wilderness," drags his cross around town talking to people about God and the need for churches to pull together for the good of the nation.

Irvinton to Host Journey to Christmas Past

The historic Irvinton Estate in Richmond is hosting the 2012 edition of "A Journey to Christmas Past."

Co-sponsored by Richmond Tourism and the Battle of Richmond Association, this year's festivity will be Saturday, Dec. 15, from 6 to 8 p.m., and Sunday, Dec. 16, from 1 to 4 p.m. Guided tours will begin every half hour.

"A Journey to Christmas Past will give visitors an idea of what Christmas was like during the 1860s in Richmond and other places," said Paul Rominger, volunteer managing director of the Battle of Richmond Association. "This cooperative effort between the Battle of Richmond Association and Richmond tourism provides quality entertainment in a relaxing atmosphere as well as a learning experience for guests of all ages."

Irvinton, the palatial estate located on Lancaster Avenue in Richmond, provides an excellent setting for this seasonal historical affair. Built in the early-to mid-1800s, Irvinton has lost little of its grandeur of a by-gone era. Irvinton will be decorated in period Christmas decor.

Guests will experience vignettes depicting life around Christmas time in the 1860s. Some scenes are more serious in nature, like a Civil War officer writing home on Christmas Eve, to the more whimsical grandpa and grandma reminiscing of their childhood Christmas.

Guests will also be able to partake in a reception provided by the Battle of Richmond Association. The event does have a nominal entrance fee.

For more information or directions, please call Richmond Tourism at 859-626-8474 or the Battle of Richmond Visitors Center at 859-624-0013.

The Salvation Army on a mission to bring joy this Christmas season

While many of us associate the Christmas season with happy gatherings of family and friends, there are many whose holiday spirits are dulled by the harsh realities of simply making ends meet. The Salvation Army is making a determined effort this holiday season to bring hope to those local families who desperately need a helping hand.

The Salvation Army's bell ringers in Estill County help generate significant support for programs community-wide.

"With many people still out of work because of the persisting economic downturn, we expect needs to be even greater this year," says Captain Mark Love. "But we need to care about our neighbors right here in Estill County who face a most difficult Christmas season, struggling even to meet their most basic necessities. I'm confident our faithful friends and those new supporters who see the need will share generously and won't let them down."

Again this year the red kettles will be in place at Price Less Foods, Save A Lot and Stop & Shop on the first three Saturdays in December. Members of the Irvine-Ravenna Kiwanis Club along with other community volunteers will tend the kettles and accept donations each Saturday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Volunteers to ring the bells are still needed. If you would like to volunteer for two hours of bell-ringing on a Saturday in December, please call Steve Garrett at 723-3049.

Tips on raising rabbits

Rabbits require less labor than other livestock species, but it is important to remember that rabbits are just as susceptible to the dangers that come with freezing weather. To avoid dangers like frostbite, contamination from unclean cages and the loss of an animal's body heat, it is important to keep a close eye on your rabbit during the winter to ensure that your rabbit's health is not risked.

If your rabbit is housed outdoors in a hutch, check the location. If the hutch moved to an area of shade in the summer, the hutch should be relocated against a building for the winter. Placing the hutch against the building prevents the cold wind from the north from entering. Board up the sides of the hutch to make sure the least amount of cold air enters. The front side of the hutch should be covered just enough to give the rabbit enough fresh air, but also block off the freezing air and snow that will try to slip in the hutch.

Maintaining a clean hutch for the rabbit is essential year round. Check the drop pan in the hutch frequently to ensure waste doesn't freeze. The removal of frozen waste is much more difficult.

It is suggested that if you choose to move your rabbit indoors during the winter, make sure that the transition from the cold temperatures to the warmer temperatures is gradual. Rabbits do not tolerate extreme changes in temperatures well. If you choose to move the rabbit indoors, avoid placing the rabbit in locations that might harm its well-being. For example, moving your rabbit to a garage where there will be a lot of fumes is not recommended. The fumes could be harmful and potentially deadly to rabbits.

Just as rabbits need water in the summer to stay hydrated, it is important to make sure that an abundant supply of water is available in the winter as well. Cold weather will cause the rabbit's water to become frozen a lot more often. This will require you to frequently change the rabbit's water. Water bottles are convenient in the summer, but using a water bottle in the winter may not be the best idea. When the water in the bottle freezes, it will cause the water bottle to crack. To avoid this, use bowls and change the water frequently to keep a hydrated rabbit.

Feeding your rabbit can also help in creating the body warmth that your rabbit needs in the winter. Since body heat requires more calories, it is suggested that adding a little corn to your rabbit's diet will help create more body heat. To increase your rabbit's caloric intake, add a larger proportion to your rabbit's food bowl or some alfalfa hay for your rabbit to nibble on. It is important to remember that you want to increase the caloric intake without causing your rabbit to gain a lot of excess weight. Weight gain can lead to future health problems for your rabbit.

While many livestock animals fair the cold temperatures in the winter, it is important to remember that the proper care is essential for the health of your rabbit. Proper care and preparation for extreme temperature changes will help your rabbit transition from one season to the next. For more information contact Estill County Cooperative Extension Service.

Estill County 4-H receives funding

Kentucky Commissioner of Agriculture James Comer announced in February that for the first time, the proceeds from the farm license plate - voluntary donations would be divided equally among 4-H, FFA and Kentucky Proud. Farmers can make the $10 donation when they renew their license plates.

The 4-H share for the fiscal year ending June 30, was $121,708.64 and benefits all levels of Kentucky 4-H. The Kentucky 4-H Foundation splits the donations equally between the county from which the funds originated and the Foundation. Half of the donations used by the foundation will support state level programs. The other half will support county programs where the donation originated, making this a great opportunity for local 4-H Councils, Clubs, and members to increase financial support for their program.

"The voluntary donations from the Kentucky farm license plate renewals will help Kentucky 4-H give young people around the Commonwealth opportunities that develop leadership, citizenship and life skills," said Agriculture Commissioner James Comer.

Over 228,000 youth are involved in KY 4-H programs. Kentucky ranks in the top 10 in several 4-H enrollment categories nationwide.

"The Kentucky 4-H Foundation is working with Commissioner Comer and the Kentucky FFA Foundation to raise awareness about the farm license plate voluntary donation program," said Keith Rogers, Executive Director of the Kentucky 4-H Foundation. "This is an excellent opportunity for our agricultural community to support the youth of Kentucky and Kentucky Proud program. We encourage those with farm tags to make the $10 donation next March when they renew their farm license plates."

4-H youth are a living, breathing, culture-changing revolution for doing the right thing, breaking through obstacles and pushing our country forward by making a measurable difference right where they live.

Please visit the 4-H Foundation's new website at www.kentucky4hfoundation.org.

Achievement Program teaches about goals

Throughout their 4-H career, young people are encouraged to set and reach goals. No program better exemplifies this than the Kentucky 4-H Achievement Program.

The Achievement Program replaced the 4-H Honors Program in September 2011. The new program allows 4-H'ers to start accumulating points as soon as they start their 4-H careers and to begin earning recognition in the sixth grade. With a new 4-H program year beginning in September, now is the time for 4-H'ers to begin thinking about joining this program.

In the Achievement Program, young people can earn points toward the completion of each of five non-competitive levels by participating in various leadership opportunities, projects, activities and events. Points are given based on whether the activity occurred at the county, district, state or national levels, with point totals ranging from county level events earning one point to national events receiving four points. The program's non-competitive levels range from Level I which requires 25 points and being a sixth-grader to Level V where a 4-H'er earns 200 points and is in the 10th grade.

Students who complete either Level I or Level II of the program will receive a certificate at the 4-H Teen Summit.

Levels III, IV and V have the opportunity to apply for additional competitive achievement awards. These awards include bronze, silver, gold and emerald levels. To reach the bronze level, 4-H'ers must be in the eighth grade and reached Level III. Each of the state's seven districts can choose to submit the applications of 15 4-H'ers, and those 105 receive a $50 scholarship to the 4-H Teen Conference.

To apply for the silver level, 4-H'ers must be in at least the ninth grade and earned the Level IV award. Once again, each district can submit the applications of 15 4-H'ers, but of those 105 applicants, 60 are selected. Those 60 receive a $125 scholarship to the Teen Conference.

4-H'ers in the 10th grade who have reached Level V can apply for the gold award. Gold applicants must complete a community service project. For the project, the 4-H'er interviews community members about problems in the community, decides on one problem to concentrate on, develops a solution and leads a group of individuals to complete it. Each district can submit 10 applicants for the gold award. Of the 70 statewide applicants, 30 are selected. Gold winners receive a $160 scholarship to the Teen Conference and a $750 scholarship to the 2013 National 4-H Congress.

The top 10 gold winners from the current 4-H program year as well as gold winners from previous years are invited to apply for the emerald level in March. Those seeking emerald status must complete a county honors application, emerald application, an up-to-date resume and personal PowerPoint by May 15. These applications will go before a committee and the top 15 will take part in an interview and present their PowerPoint at Teen Conference. The four applicants selected for this level will receive a $1,000 scholarship to the 2014 National 4-H Conference in Washington, D.C. and $1,000 college scholarship.

4-H'ers should check with their county 4-H youth development agent for local 4-H Achievement Program application deadlines. Agents must submit applications to the state 4-H office by Dec. 15.

For more information about the Kentucky 4-H Achievement Program, contact the Estill County Cooperative Extension Service.

Educational programs of the Cooperative Extension Service serve all people regardless of race, color, sex, religion, disability or national origin.

Dear Friends,

This Thanksgiving season is such a wonderful time to express my appreciation to all my friends who have been so kind to me in the past few months. I appreciate all the pretty cards, all the people who came to see me in the hospital and at home, the beautiful flowers, the goodies you sent, the calls you made to check on me, and best of all, your prayers. I also appreciate being chosen to be in the Hall of Honor for 2012. Although I wasn't able to attend, my family and friends told me it was a nice evening. My thanks to Rhonda Gould, my secretary at City Hall, for her kind remarks, and to all my family and friends who were there for me. The pictures of that night are in a special album that I treasure. There are so many good memories and am I am thankful for all who played a part in this honor.

I am happy to report that I am improving a little every day, and am learning to deal with the words gradual improvement. I am thankful for the progress I have made and covet your prayers that I can continue to recover. As Minnie Pearl would say, "I so-o-o-o-o glad to be here!"

Happy Thanksgiving 2012,
Tom Williams

State Representative
Elect,
Gary "Toby" Herald
would like to thank

Local banjo player joins ‘American Drive’

By LISA BICKNELL
CV&T Staff Writer

Local musician Josh Hymer is set to begin touring with four former members of ‘JD Crowe and The New South,’ as Crowe, acclaimed banjo player and singer, retires at the end of the year and the remaining members form a new band. They’re calling themselves American Drive.

Hymer said he knew from an early age that he wanted to make a career out of playing the banjo.

“Some see playing music as a hobby. I knew when I was real young that this is what I wanted to do for a living.”

At only 30 years old, Hymer has been busy honing his talent as he’s played professionally for several bands, including High Bridge, a group of locals which included the late Jerry Wayne Chaney, as well as Scotty and Justin Roberts. He says they’ve all been big influences on his life and his music.

He has also played banjo for bluegrass notables including Ernie Thacker and Rt. 23’ David Parmley and the Continental Divide and the Clay Hess Band.

When he begins touring with American Drive in January, Hymer will be performing with a group of talented individuals who have been associated with one of bluegrass music’s greatest musical traditions.

JD Crowe and The New South has nurtured such musical greats as Ricky Skaggs, Tony Rice, Jerry Douglas and Keith Whitley over the past 40 years.

Hymer and the other members of American Drive are scheduled to play their first show at the World Famous Station Inn in Nashville in January. Their first album, self-titled, is available for purchase now.

“We already have a lot of bookings coming in, but we can’t take that for granted. No band, whether they have a reputation or not, has any guarantee of success.”

Still, Josh said he has “high hopes” that they will do well.

“All the pieces are there,” he said. “Ricky and Dwight are great singers and we have some world class musicians.”

“I’m humbled to be a part of it,” he said. “If Earl Scruggs was the king of bluegrass banjo, then Crowe was the crown prince. They were the first and second generations of bluegrass music.”

Hymer will be joining former New South members Rickey Wasson, from Clay City, who plays guitar and is the lead singer, Dwight McCall who sings tenor and plays the mandolin, Kyle

Perkins on bass, and Matt DeSpain who sings harmony and plays the dobro.

Although Hymer will play banjo, Crowe’s specialty, and singing harmony, he insists that he’s not taking JD Crowe’s place.

“His shoes can’t be filled,” he said. “He’s a hero to me.”

Josh says he first took interest in the banjo when his grandmother Betty Lou Hymer introduced him to bluegrass music. “She bought me a banjo when I was about eight or nine.”

“I didn’t take lessons, but I grew up listening to Earl Scruggs and JD Crowe.

“I love the lonesomeness of it; the amount of skill it takes trumps any other kind of music for me. There are no electronic effects-- it’s a bare bones kind of music.”

Josh says he gave up a lot to work on his music in his teens, including his social life. “I was just playing all the time. I’ve worked hard the past 20 years.”

His parents are Shell and Terry Hymer, and he has a younger brother named Blake.

His music career has taken him all over the lower 48. Playing in a band naturally means being on the road a lot, which “you get used to,” he said.

“Traveling is what you get paid for,” he said. “Picking for two 45-minute sets is fun.”

Josh has a daughter, two-year old Angel Faith. He said she likes to watch him play in Youtube videos, etc., but he would never push this career on her.

The life of a musician “is not easy,” Josh said. “You make a lot of sacrifices. We’re not getting rich, but I love it.

“People say to me all the time, ‘Man, I wish I could play something.’

“I guess you get a little more sense as you get older,” he said. “I realize now that it’s a gift. I thank God everyday that I can play.”

Thanksgiving turkey safety tips

By MELISSA JESSIE
CSEPP Information Officer

Thanksgiving is this week and many of us are dreaming of the wonderful and bountiful amounts of food we are about to consume or already have. However, for those that have to prepare these meals it is a time of stress.

Thanksgiving's main dish usually requires turkey. How we choose to cook this turkey varies from person to person: some bake and some fry. No matter how you choose to fix your turkey there are safety tips to keep your Thanksgiving a happy holiday.

General Turkey Safety

Thaw the frozen turkey in the refrigerator. Allow one day for each five pounds of turkey. A twenty-pound turkey will take about four days to thaw. Hint: Remove neck & giblets from inside the bird as soon as possible to hasten thawing.

Do not thaw on the kitchen counter. If you do not have time to thaw in the refrigerator, you may thaw it in cold water, provided that the turkey is in a leak-proof packaging, it is submerged and the water is changed every half-hour. Allow 30 minutes per pound of turkey to thaw in cold water.

Cook fresh turkeys within two days and thawed ones within four days.

Wash your hands with hot, soapy water before and after handling raw poultry. Wash all knives, cutting boards and utensils also after using for raw poultry.

Read and follow the cooking directions on the label. Cook turkey until it is done (165°F). Do not slow cook overnight at low temperatures or partially cook. Some turkeys come with pop-up thermometers. They are to be used only as a guide to doneness. Take temperature with a meat thermometer to be sure the temperature is over 165°F.

Stuffing should not be prepared a day ahead and the turkey should not be stuffed until ready to cook. A quicker, safer method is to cook the stuffing separately in a casserole, using some of the pan juices to flavor and moisten the stuffing.

Eat the meal as soon as it is prepared. Do not leave leftovers out on the counter or table after dinner. Cut the meat off the bones and put it in shallow containers in the refrigerator.

Reheat all leftovers to 165°F. (Use your meat thermometer.) Gravy should be brought to a rolling boil.

Turkey Frying Safety

Turkey fryers should always be used outdoors a safe distance from buildings and any other material that can burn.

Never use turkey fryers on wooden decks or in garages.

Make sure the fryers are used on a flat surface to reduce accidental tipping.

Never leave the fryer unattended. Most units do not have thermostat controls. If you don't watch the fryer carefully, the oil will continue to heat until it catches fire.

Never let children or pets near the fryer when in use. Even after use, never allow children or pets near the turkey fryer. The oil inside the cooking pot can remain dangerously hot, hours after use.

To avoid oil spillover, do not overfill the fryer.

Use well-insulated potholders or oven mitts when touching pot or lid handles. If possible, wear safety goggles to protect your eyes from oil splatter.

Make sure the turkey is completely thawed and be careful with marinades. Oil and water don't mix, and water causes oil to spill over, causing a fire or even an explosion hazard.

The National Turkey Federation recommends refrigerator thawing and to allow approximately 24 hours for every five pounds of bird thawed in the refrigerator.

Keep an all-purpose fire extinguisher nearby. Never use water to extinguish a grease fire. Remember to use your best judgment when attempting to fight a fire. If the fire is manageable, use an all-purpose fire extinguisher. If the fire increases, immediately call 911 for help.

Fall is time to plant Spring bulbs

ERIC BAKER

Agriculture Extension Agent

Fall is the time to think about all those flowers we associate with spring: daffodils, crocus and other easy-to-grow flowering bulbs. If you aren't growing any spring-flowering bulbs in your landscape, you are missing out on some easy-to-grow plants that provide early color to your garden.

These bulbs are planted in fall because it corresponds to the end of their natural dormancy. Most of these plants begin root growth in fall, followed by a cool stratification period necessary for proper flower development and then shoot growth in late winter and early spring.

No matter which bulbs you select, remember that the largest bulbs will produce the greatest show next spring. However, smaller bulbs will still produce some flowers, and these may be the best choice for mass planting or naturalizing. Avoid any bulbs that feel lightweight as these may have severely dried during storage.

It's important to plant flowering bulbs at the proper depth, so inquire about plant depth at the nursery or follow the label directions. A light application of bone meal fertilizer at planting is often recommended, though probably not necessary. Most bulbs do not need fertilization until growth emerges in the spring. When you see plants emerging, apply 1 to 2 pounds per 100 square feet of a complete fertilizer (like 10-10-10).

Once flowering occurs, remove the faded blooms, but don't remove the foliage. The leaves produce sugars and other compounds necessary for the bulb to overwinter and bloom again the next spring. Most bulbs will enter dormancy in late spring or early summer and will renew growth, starting with the root system in the fall.

For more information on planting spring-flowering bulbs this fall, visit the Estill County Cooperative Extension Service or call 723-4557. Educational programs of the University of Kentucky Cooperative Extension Service serve all people regardless of race, color, age, sex, religion, disability or national origin.

Extension office hosting grain crops meeting

Grain farmers are currently harvesting soybeans and field corn. To assist with planning for the 2013 crop year, the Estill County Extension Service will host a Grain Crops Early Bird Meeting on Tuesday, Nov. 27, from 1:30 p.m. to 4:30 p.m., at the Extension Office, 76 Golden Court (off Stacy Lane).

Topics to be covered include maximizing returns from manure application, weed control options, insect pest challenges, preventing corn disease, crop insurance risk management, and corn seeding rates/planting dates.

This meeting will be delivered using an online computer program called "Lync".

UK specialists will be presenting their information from Lexington/Princeton to various Extension offices throughout central and eastern Kentucky over the internet.

If you have a question, we have the ability to ask the presenters and receive an immediate response. We hope you can attend.

For more information or to pre-register, call the Estill County Extension Office at 723-4557.

Jewel and Jerry Hansel

of Rockcastle County suspected that they were losing dollars by losing heat...

and they were RIGHT!

Jewel and Jerry Hansel

After checking with Jackson Energy, Jewel and Jerry Hansel found they were eligible for a $258 Button-Up Rebate if they would upgrade their insulation. "Between the rebate and the dollars we were sure to save each month... we knew the investment would pay off quickly," said Jerry. And pay off it did. "Our energy bills averaged $145 for the few years before the extra insulation to our floor and attic," added Jewel, "and our average for this past year has been $118. That savings adds up over the year!"

Visit myjacksonenergy.com for more!

Button-Up and SAVE!

Install additional insulation or other weatherization upgrades to reduce the heat loss in your home, and Jackson Energy will help pay for the upgrades with a rebate!

To be eligible for a Button-Up rebate the home must be two years old or older and have electric heat. The maximum rebate for the Button-Up program is $300 and is based on the total heat loss reduction.

I love Thanksgiving a day set aside to pause and reflect on the gift of life in general and the everyday gifts that make it worth living.

Compared to Christmas, expectations are low except to give thanks and eat; so are the cost and workload. Those are reason enough to love Thanksgiving.

Developing an attitude of gratitude is a worthwhile practice for anyone, anytime, regardless of faith or lack thereof. For Christians, the Bible instructs us time and time again of the value of expressing gratitude to our Creator.

Many of us have been posting daily on facebook something we're thankful for, myself included.

I've enjoyed this little exercise. It's humbling to think of all the "ordinary" little blessings that enrich our lives and make them easier and more comfortable, many of which we have no control over, can't earn and are simply gifts.

I started this little project by saying first off that I'm thankful for my health, my family, Jesus, and a roof over my head, but I determined to look for more specific, even offbeat reasons to be thankful.

Things I've given thanks for so far: late Saturday morning breakfasts when our college girl is home, flannel sheets, starry nights, the grocery store, frosty mornings (I think I've already given thanks for those twice, because we've had a whole slew of them lately, but they're so beautiful!), our three dogs and three cats and fresh clean notebooks.

It's inspiring to see what others are thankful for too. I have noticed that I haven't seen many posts where people are thankful for possessions. I'm sure we all are, but it's interesting that what apparently comes to mind first when we give thanks is not things but relationships and other intangibles that are often beyond our control, like the ability to see or hear.

Doesn't that just go to show how much of what we enjoy is a gift, not a guarantee?

A year ago Thanksgiving, our newborn grandson Clay was a month old and had been fighting for every minute of his life. It appeared that he was just beginning to pull out of danger.

Hannah got to hold him for the first time at 26 days old. It would be another 10 days before I held our first grandson.

He's come a long way since then, despite some devastating set-backs. Now our Clay is a hard one to hold as he reaches and grabs for things and squirms around in our laps.

When he gets tired, he fights sleep so hard. The sound of anyone talking in the next room makes him spring up like a jack-in-the-box.

It's something most babies do, but I'm thankful for that. After seeing him lie motionless in a medically induced coma for a month after his second reherniation, every move is a blessing.

And that smile, he's all dimples and teeth and has one of the most expressive faces ever.

I'm so looking forward to Clay's reaction to Christmas lights and trees and presents—and paper.

Speaking of which, I am one of those dwindling few who resists starting Christmas preparations until Thanksgiving is over. I refuse to turn on "Mixmas," and I refuse to decorate, or even shop for Christmas gifts until after Thanksgiving, although I did break my own rule and buy a few things that were on sale to decorate with.

Time goes by too fast to rush the seasons, I think. I know businesses have to get a jump start on the season in order to offer seasonal items for sale, but Christmas stuff out before Halloween is just too much for me.

I sometimes feel like an ol' Scrooge for saying so, and I'm not, really. I love Christmas, but I love it in December.

For now, I'm busy counting blessings and thinking about a Thanksgiving feast. One of the things I'm most thankful for is the bounty of produce that's come from our garden this year despite spells of extremely hot and dry weather.

Right now, we're enjoying those cole crops. Broccoli, cabbage, turnips and greens have been abundant, and I'm thankful to be able to go outside and harvest such healthy food from our garden.

I love turnips, sliced and boiled with a little butter and olive oil and maybe a jalapeno pepper tossed in to heat the broth a little. I love humble peasant food.

I came across this recipe on the Pioneer Woman's website recently for a jazzed up version of turnips. I think I'll spring it on the family this Thanksgiving and see what they think about it.

Happy Thanksgiving to you all! (I refuse to say Turkey day, too. There's little doubt I'll gobble til I wobble, but that's not what it's all about.)

4 Tablespoons (to 6 Tablespoons) butter
Chicken broth
Heavy cream
Salt and pepper, to taste
Fresh herbs to taste

Preheat the oven to 375 degrees. Start by peeling and thinly slicing the turnips and mincing the cloves of garlic. Grate about 2 cups of Gruyere cheese.

In a large oven-proof skillet, melt 2-3 tablespoons of butter over medium-low heat. Place a single layer of turnips on top of the butter.

Next, sprinkle a little of the garlic on top, then – and this is purely optional and really not all that necessary – add a couple of tablespoons of butter.

Next drizzle a healthy splash of chicken broth over the turnips. Next, do the same with the cream.

Now add a nice layer of Gruyere – about ½ cup. Sprinkle a bit of salt, but not much as the cheese is already salty.

Repeat these layers twice more. Sprinkle on some freshly ground black pepper.

Now pop the whole thing into the oven and bake for about 20 minutes or until the top is hot, brown and bubbly.

Enjoy! And may God bless you all this Thanksgiving.

Venison Pot Roast

Aaron Couch, Miamisburg, Ohio

Coat one 3 to 3 1/2 pound venison shoulder or rump roast with about 2 tablespoons all-purpose flour. In a dutch oven, brown roast on all sides in 2 tablespoons hot cooking oil. Reduce heat, cover and simmer for 2 to 2 1/2 hours till meat is tender, adding water if necessary. Remove meat to a serving platter; keep warm.

For sour cream sauce, skim fat from pan juices. Measure juices; add enough water to measure 2 cups liquid. Return liquid to dutch oven. Stir together 1/2 cup dairy sour cream and 1/4 cup cold water, stir in 1/4 cup all-purpose flour. Add to dutch oven. Cook and stir till thickened and bubbly. Cook and stir 1 to 2 minutes more. ENCOURAGING WORD: THANKSGIVING COMES FROM THE HEART

Howard Coop

in numerous congregations and heard those words sung during the thanksgiving season. Those words are poignant reminders of a profound thought: If we take the time and effort to take note of them, every day is is precious because it is filled with both little and big surprises from some source that make life pleasant and give it real meaning and genuine significance. Thursday, Nov. 22 is a significant holiday in our land. We

In 1925, Johnson Oatman, Jr. published a song associated with Thanksgiving that has become well known to many people. It contains the words many of us remember well: “Count your many blessings, name them one by one, and it will surprise you what the Lord hath done.” As far back as I can remember, I have been call it Thanksgiving and rightly so, for it commemorates a great heritage. On Thanksgiving Day, this nation will pause, hopefully, to remember the hardy Pilgrims at Plymouth and the big feast they shared with friendly Indians as they took time from their labor to give thanks to God for surviving a severe winter with very little food and arriving at the first harvest they experienced in the new world. In commemoration of that rich heritage, many families will gather around a heavy-laden table and indulge in a big feast and call it thanksgiving. But true thanksgiving is more, much more, than a family coming together to share big feast of turkey, dressing, and all the trimmings that go with them. An anonymous individual has written, “Gratitude is the memory of the heart,” and all of my life I have heard, “The mouth speaks what the heart is full of.” Now, gratitude is a feeling of appreciation for things or benefits received and remembered, and thanksgiving is the verbal expression of this feeling. When we remember all of the things---both little and big surprises---we have received, our hearts overflow with gratitude, and sincere expressions of thanks follow. That’s true thanksgiving, for it comes from the heart.
